in Europe, has left Constantinople for Adrianople.

An Athens dispatch, dated March 24, said the Turks were fortifying Lule Burgas, ferty-five miles southeast of Adrianople, and other places, in the fear of a possible attack by Bulgaria. A Turkish army at Lule Burgas is being trained by German officers.

"Owing to the damage caused by the shore torpedo tubes in the Dardanelles," says the Athens correspondent of "The Paily Mail," "The allied admirals in a council of war have decided to designate certain warships to fire at the forts at long range.

"Officers of the allied fleet declare to the correspondents that the forcing of the strait at all costs is certain."

A dispatch to "The Daily Mail," from Dedeagatch says there are now 1,000 German gunners in the Dardanelles forts.

this market.

Gradually this condition was redicted by exports and the big leans of redit made to the Allies by New York tankers, mainly through the house of lorgan, until the balance of trade in the United States's favor reversed the tunation, and exchange fell to the lowest point in history. Under normal anditions gold would flow here in impense volumes, but England's gold reverse are diminishing, and she turally wishes to retain as much as sible.

Tends to Restrict Trade.

This condition, as the National City Bank points out in its March circular, leading as it does to increasing the value of the dollar as measured by the pound sterling, tends to restrict trade by making American goods cost more to those who must pay for them in sterling. It is, as the bank points out, the equivalent of a tax on commerce and an obstruction to business. As yet this is not serious, but should exchange be allowed to drop much further, the natural consequence of an sterling. It is, as the bank points out, the equivalent of a tax on commerce and an obstruction to business. As yet this is not serious, but should exchange be allowed to drop much further, the natural consequence of an enormorous excess of exports over imports, it will be serious unless some means are found to check it.

Further selling of American securities by Europe is therefore desirable from the American standpoint. Europe cannot pay ir goods, and the condition here is auch that the American market would readily digest a much larger volume of securities than is now coming over. How this can be arranged is one of the things that will undoubtedly figure in the discussions of Mr. Morgan and the financiers of England, France and Russia.

Credits extended to the Allies are estimated to date to amount to at least $200,000,000, Most of this has been placed through the Morgan housed. There seems, however, to be no limit to the demand for credits from Europe, and as the amount grows larger the rate of interest naturally tends to mount. Without some distinct understanding as to the amount that may be placed and the rate of interest thereon, the tendency is toward the creation of confusion that would seriously interfere with American business.

Belimow, Russia, Feb. 24.—This is a typical artillery day. Its purpose, as defined by a smiling German officer who appears to have no nerves, is "the destroying of the positions of the enemy." It the night this shattering of intrenchments and temperaments will be followe by infantry attacks.

The Russian shells are falling 1,000 metres to the south of us, a statement that creates an impression of larger dauntlessness on the part of "us" than if you said they were falling three-fifths of a mile away.

On each side of the highway leading into Bolimow stands an Austrian 30½-centimetre gun which is reeking with grease and which every half hour emits hellfire and destruction to the amount of nearly four tons, turn and turn of nearly four tons, turn and turn of series in ground the weep. Perhaps one should have done both.

There is a good deal of pleasantry as well as baked potatoes behind the batteries. In fact, the cannoneers began to lead quite a distracting life immediately the correspondents appeared on the scene this morning, for, what with firing the guns and keeping the with firing the guns and keeping the with firing the guns and keeping the chiral properties on the scene this morning, for, what with firing the guns and keeping the with firing the guns and keeping the chiral properties on the scene this morning, for, what with firing the guns and keeping the with firing the guns and keeping the correspondents appeared on the scene this morning, for, what with firing the guns and keeping the unit of the correspondents appeared on the scene this morning for, what with firing the guns and keeping the unit of the correspondents appeared on the scene this morning for, what with firing the guns and keeping the correspondents appeared on the scene this morning for, what with firing the guns and keeping the correspondents appeared on the scene this morning for with firing the guns and keeping the correspondents appeared on the scene this morning for with firing the guns and keeping the c
